As to Constry Schools.

Without any especial reference to the local situation, but speaking in regard to the general necessity of supervision of the schools, and particularly of the rural schools, Dr. Robert Frazer, State agent of the Southern Education Board and former president of the State Female Normal School at Farnwille, said yesterday that there was no more important question now confronting Virginia people.

"There is no other that looms so large with the serious-minded," said Dr. Frazer. "In its study it will be helpful to proceed in the light of several relative questions:

"Is there need of better supervision? If we want better schools, yes. As is the schools of the schools as is the superintendent, so are all the teachers and all the schools. This statement is so fully demonstrated in experience that It holds a sure place in the canon of educational maxims. And so the question brings on the question of the schools of the schools of the schools.

Appointment by Merit,

"Is merit likely to be the sole basis of appointment? In all our forty years of public schools this is the first great opportunity to make sure of their efficiency. The appointing power never before had such a chance. In their public utterances the present board has never shunned to declare their full purpose to see that Virginia schools shall be of the best. They will not falter in the presence of their best chance.

"With the appointing power moved by no consideration but patriotic and loyal devotion to the rights of the children, with an adequate supply of trained men and with the supreme interest of the Commonwealth at stake, it is not reasonable to expect anything but expertsupervsiion; and to this high end let all good citizens unite in holding up the hauds of the board."
